ABSTRACT

This project introduces a system to record disciplinary offences. The disciplinary record system enables staff to record resident's name who commits an offence in the form provided in the system. The mission of developing this system is to improve the procedures to relate to disciplinary actions the characteristics of the system are similar to other database systems. The system is not much different from other online registrations.

17.1 Introduction

At the beginning of the semester, residents must register within the stipulated time. During this time, staff must verify if student had committed an offence or has cleared their fines in the previous semester. Staff needs to know offences the total amount of fines or penalties and brief background of the resident (student). At this point staff may make mistake in counting how many times the offences were committed, redundant payment of fines and sometimes different penalties for the same offence. This happens if staff forgets to record the second warning. Islamically, we need accurate words of offences before penalties are issued. Thus, this system must capture facts rather than assumptions.

17.2 Literature Review

Currently, staffs have to record all the disciplinary actions done by residents manually in the log-book. It is time consuming to trace how many times that particular resident had committed an offence.
